

DISCOVER ICELAND & GREENLAND

ICELAND

Iceland is a unique island located at the top of the world, halfway between North America and Europe. The country offers an ultra-clean environment and safe streets with a vast unspoiled, unpolluted landscape full of natural wonders. Iceland is made for adventures and outdoor activities. Come and discover a land with glittering, snowcapped peaks and glaciers, deep fjords, active volcanoes, hot springs, rivers, waterfalls, highland deserts and unusual wildlife.

If you are a travel agent, a tour operator, a group leader, or wish to book group travel to exciting offshore sites and if you are interested in learning more about Iceland and its possibilities, you have come to the right place! Our company has welcomed travellers from all over the world since 1931.

The idea is simple. More and more people find Iceland an excellent destination for a nature discovery trip and an active outdoor vacation surrounded by geological wonders, spectacular landscape and interesting history. As a result, Iceland appears on all kinds of top 10 lists of emerging and must-see destinations.

However, this small island with unpronounceable names, dicey weather and (sometimes) high prices isn't a walk in the park for the travel trade. With more than 90-year extensive experience, GJ Travel is your ideal partner in delivering excellent and memorable Iceland and Greenland programs to your customers. We make it easier for you to create and arrange the most suitable trips to discover this exciting and complex destination. We offer multi-day fixed departure tours on a SIC basis for individual travellers and tailor-made private tours for groups. It all revolves around Iceland and Greenland, and it all just got a lot easier!

MAIN REASONS TO VISIT: Nature, scenery, landscape and outdoor activities. Northern lights in winter, from September to mid-April. Summer is the best season for outdoor activities; there is up to 24 hours of daylight and midnight sun.

ICELAND

THE COUNTRY: Iceland is an island of 103.000 km² (39.756 sq. miles), about the size of Cuba, Portugal, South Korea, the US state of Kentucky and the Indian state of Bihar. Its highest peak, Hvannadalshnjúkur, rises to 2.110 m, and over 11% of the country is covered by glaciers, including Vatnajökull, the largest glacier in Europe.

PEOPLE: Out of a population of around 370.000, 65% live in the capital Reykjavik and neighbouring towns in the southwest. Keflavik International Airport is located about 50 km (30 miles) from the capital. The highland interior is uninhabitable due to glaciers, mountains and desert landscape. Most centres of population are situated on the coast.

ROUTE 1 OR THE „RING ROAD“ is the main road in Iceland that goes around the island, mainly along the coast, connecting many villages and towns. The total length of Route 1 is 1.322 kilometres (821 miles). In general, driving tours around Iceland with the most popular side trips are about 2.000 km (1.240 miles). If you add the Westfjords, calculate with 3.000 km (1.860 miles) of driving. An Around-Iceland tour on Route 1 is practical in around 8 days or more, but the pace means you will be changing accommodation every night.

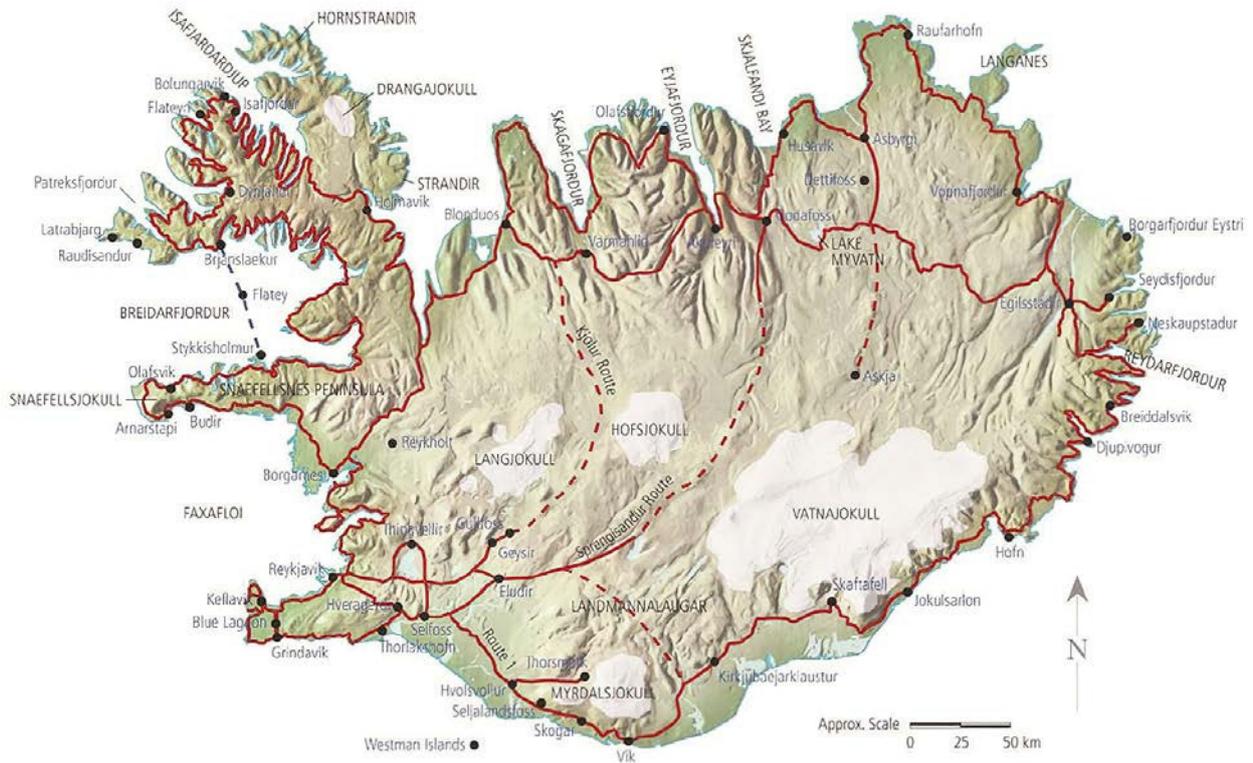

BEST TIME TO TRAVEL: Iceland is a country that inspires visitors year-round. Spring offers brighter days and emerging flora and fauna; excellent for bird watching. June to August is considered summer in Iceland, which has nearly round-the-clock sunlight and balmy weather. It's the time of the midnight sun and the travel period that is best for outdoor activities such as hiking, biking, rafting, kayaking, fishing, whale watching and camping. Autumn brings a beautiful change in colours, while winter features dark, mysterious days, softly glowing Northern Lights and even occasional snow. The Northern Lights season is from September to mid-April. The hardest part is choosing when to visit Iceland.

CLIMATE IN ICELAND: Thanks to the Gulf Stream, Iceland has a moderate maritime climate: cool in summer and fairly mild in winter. Average summer day temperatures range between 5-8 °C (41-47 °F) for lows and 12-18 °C (54-64 °F) for highs. Winter in Iceland is neither as cold as most people imagine it to be nor is it only dark. The average temperature is 0 °Celsius (32 °F), which is often warmer than you might encounter in New York, London and Continental Europe. So you can say that it is never really hot in Iceland, but also never really freezing. When it comes to Icelandic weather, the one thing you can count on is unpredictability, kind of four seasons in one day. So the best plan is to be prepared for anything and everything AND always dress in layers. The Icelanders have a saying: „there is no such thing as bad weather, just bad closing“.

IT'S NOT ABOUT THE DESTINATION – IT'S ABOUT THE JOURNEY: Iceland is a country of sharp contrasts. A place where fire and ice co-exist. Where dark winters are offset by the summer's midnight sun. From a geological standpoint, Iceland is a very young country, still amidst its own creation. Shaped by the forces of nature, the barren landscapes demonstrate the powers of the four basic elements - earth, air, fire, and water - in a dramatic way. Active volcanoes, bright green valleys, glacier-cut fjords, black sand beaches, roaring rivers and hundreds of waterfalls are the most distinctive features of the Icelandic landscape. In a fast-paced world of sprawling development, Iceland's pure nature and empty expanses stand out as a luxury. A trip to Iceland is an adventure journey set in stunning scenery.

UNIQUE EXPERIENCES: Stand behind a waterfall / Search for the northern lights / Swim and dive between two continents / Sink neck-deep in a hidden hot-spring / Explore an ice cave / Walk on a black sand beach / Go inside a volcano / Cruise next to whales and dolphins / Hike on one of Europe's largest glaciers and enter an ice cave / Tour Iceland's ring road / Meet the cute puffins / Sail between icebergs.

FACTS ABOUT THE NORTHERN LIGHTS

The northern lights occur in the northern hemisphere from September to mid-April but are only visible when the sky is clear and free of clouds. The northern lights, also called Aurora Borealis, can only be seen when there are

- Dark nights (it is not possible to see the northern lights during the summer when there are 20-24 hours of daylight)
- Clear sky (no rain, no clouds, no snowing, no fog)
- Solar explosions that create the northern lights

When all these elements come together, there is a realistic chance of seeing the northern lights about twice a week. The rule is simple; the longer you stay in locations away from cities and light pollution, the higher is the chance to see the northern lights. Tours that stay 2 nights away from light pollution have about 25-30% chance to see the northern lights. Tours that stay 4 nights away from cities have about 50-60% chance to see the northern lights. Tours that stay 5 nights or longer away from light pollution have an 85% plus chance to see the northern lights. Like many natural wonders, the northern lights are ephemeral – they may be visible, appear for a bit and then be gone. It is not a TV show that you can just turn on and off. If the perfect northern lights happen at noon, you will not see them because it is not dark. If the perfect northern lights dance in the sky at 11 p.m., but it snows, rains, or it is cloudy, then again, it is not possible to see them. If you can't see the stars, you can't see the northern lights. But the patience, which is required, is totally worth it! As northern lights are a winter event, you need to be prepared to wait outside away from light pollution while looking for them. It is best to dress very warmly, in layers, with good footwear, gloves, hats and whatever else that will make you comfortable while you wait patiently for this truly outstanding event. Note that Iceland is the warmest country of all the northern lights locations. Due to the Gulf Stream, the average temperature in Icelandic wintertime approaches 0°Celsius (32 °F), which is often warmer than you might encounter in New York, London and even in Continental Europe! Iceland is definitely much warmer in the winter than freezing Scandinavia, Siberia, Greenland, Canada and Alaska, which are other northern lights destinations. For the best photos, we recommend using a tripod. Read more

GJ TRAVEL - NORTHERN LIGHTS HOLIDAY CONCEPT

Most GJ Travel northern lights programs stay only for the first and last night in Reykjavik. All other nights are spent in the countryside at hotels that are away from towns and light pollution. This concept helps to maximize the chances to see the northern lights as we use the garden of the countryside hotels to look out for the auroras. Additionally, we minimize the daily driving and therefore use well the available daylight. The daytime itinerary focuses on nature sightseeing, cultural experiences and soft adventure, while evenings are used for the activities of the northern lights. Most programs include a combination of presentations, lectures, film and guided northern lights searches during the evenings. In addition, most accommodations in the countryside offer a northern lights wake up call for guests that register for that special service at the reception. Also included is the use of winter and northern lights explorer equipment: simple non-slip snow & ice gripper spikes for shoes and a flashlight that is helpful when walking in the dark and operating your photo camera at night.

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS ARE NOT VISIBLE FROM MAY TO THE END OF AUGUST

GREENLAND

Greenland is called Kalaallit Nunaat in Greenlandic and is the world's largest island with a small population of 56.000 people that live in small clusters of towns and settlements. No towns and villages are connected by road. Unexplored nature and authentic culture await you in every corner of the country, with various degrees of accessibility. Contrary to popular belief, you do NOT have to be a super fit daredevil to explore the real Greenland – a sense of adventure, sturdy shoes, and a camera is all it takes to enjoy this giant island where an ice cap and many glaciers cover almost 80% of the area. Greenland is the real arctic and is open for all.

Greenland is a proud nation with a past steeped in drama – it was the first stop for the Vikings as they made their way across the Atlantic to settle North America – some 500 years before a certain Columbus! The Inuit heritage is also well worth delving into – you can only be amazed at the technology and knowledge about nature these indigenous people developed many centuries ago – and still largely live by today. In many ways, Greenland is the last frontier – for example, no roads connect the towns and villages. The only way to travel is on foot, by boat or aircraft during the summertime, and by dog sledge and snowmobile in the wintertime when the ocean is frozen. However, for travellers with a sense of adventure and the wisdom to plan in advance, the challenging infrastructure is far from being an obstacle. Cruising in the blue fjords among magnificent icebergs, hiking through lush valleys towards the inland ice cap or perhaps enjoying winter pursuits such as dog sledging or snowshoe hiking is all part of what makes Greenland the adventure of a lifetime!

GJ TRAVEL OFFERS MANY DIFFERENT TOUR PACKAGES TO GREENLAND – HERE IS A SMALL SELECTION:
